In the Matter of

Amendment to the Procedural Regulations and Procedures of the Copyright Royalty Judges in Royalty Rate and Distribution Proceedings

MOTION TO ACCEPT A LATE FILING

Re: Amendment to the Procedural Regulations and Procedures of the Copyright Royalty Judges in Royalty Rate and Distribution Proceedings.

Our Own Performance Society, herein after ("OOPS"), on behalf of one of its author, publisher and copyright owner James Cannings, and James Cannings as an individual copyright owner hereby, respectfully request that the Copyright Royalty Board and Copyright Royalty Judges grant this motion.

James Cannings, an individual copyright owner, is an entertainer who travels to earn his living. He is also the founder of OOPS. This organization also represents James Cannings' interest before the Copyright Royalty Board.

1. Individual claimant Mr. Cannings who also is the sole administrator of OOPS was out of town when the captioned notice was due.

2. He returned to his home on November 13, 2006 and immediately started composing his Comments.

3. Acceptance by the Copyright Royalty Board and Copyright Royalty Judges of this late filing will not prejudice any participants that have already filed comments.

4. Mr. Cannings' comments are mailed by United States Post Office overnight mail within a reasonable time, i.e. two days beyond the due date of November 13, 2006.

5. Furthermore, the Copyright Royalty and Distribution Reform Act 2004, has granted a special Small Claimant Category. Therefore, comments of James Cannings may be of extreme value to the adopted amendments because he may be the only voice that may be heard on the issue of Small Claimants within that category.

WHEREFORE, for substantial good cause shown that results in no prejudice to the participants that have already filed comments, I hereby respectfully submit that the Copyright Royalty Board and Copyright Royalty Judges grant this motion and accept late my comments.

Respectfully Submitted
